The D Pod teachers have faced a lot of challenges in their years of teaching, but none of them have seen anything quite like the concern flooding our nation about the Coronavirus. How well do you know your teachers? Can you figure out who is who, by filling in their biggest concern, what they will be doing to relax, and their favorite snack? Good luck and stay safe at home! Wash your hands and check Google Classrooms!

Active Clues

1. The five teachers are the teacher calling Ms. McGovern about cancelled hockey, the teacher wishing her family could go out for sushi, the one that is calling Mrs. Schultz about where to buy diapers if they are as limited as toilet paper, the teacher worried about having enough dog food for her babies and the teacher craving Chili's chips and salsa.

2. Of the teacher face-timing her mom & her sister and the teacher tempted to hoard kleenex, one is the middle of the alphabetical teacher and the other has passed up the Takis to buy pretzels.

3. Mrs. Khan won't be fighting her teacher friends over chips and salsa or sushi.

4. The teacher who hopes to have enough kleenex, the teacher calling Mrs. Kraus about Slam Club, and the teacher that is fourth alphabetically are three different teachers.

5. The teacher who likes chips & queso is either the one face-timing her mom and sister or the one that is last alphabetically.

6. The teacher who may relax by going for a run now has a name after the teacher who is worried about running out of kleenex.

7. The teacher who likes cheese & crackers has a last name longer and farther down the alphabet than the runner.

8. Ms. Kepka is concerned there will not be enough kleenex to wipe away her tears from the cancellation of March Madness and all the St. Patrick's day parades in Chicago.

9. Mrs. Shumate isn't too worried about a diaper shortage.
